- Novel is Psychological, Ahmed Ali probes into the mind of his character, Bilqueesha, when she is pregnant. She says out all her feelings related to her child.
- Asghar's love for her beloveds is also portrayed psychologically and the writer makes us realize that he is over-indulged in self-love and self-pity.
- Historical in a way that it's a post-colonial novel. It portrays some events of post-colonialism, e.g. George VI's coronation conditions of Delhi in the twentieth century.
- Transitional novel in a way that it's a novel of change, change in the minds of people, change in the generation, change in the culture of Delhi, change in the way of living.
- We see family life shifting from the hands of Mir Nihal in the hands of Asghar.
- Ahmed Ali, being a progressive writer, uses writing as a tool to correct his society; he criticizes the society.
